

Risk Warning

The purpose of this Notice is to disclose to the Client information about the risks associated with trading on financial markets and to warn the Client about possible financial losses related to such risks. This Notice cannot disclose all information about all potential risks due to the variety of possible situations.

1. When carrying out conversion transactions, a relatively small change in the price of a financial instrument may have a significant effect on the status of the Client's trading account due to leverage. If the market moves against the Client's position, the Client may incur a loss equal to the initial deposit and any additional funds deposited to maintain open positions. The Client bears full responsibility for taking all risks into account, using financial resources and selecting an appropriate trading strategy.

2. A number of instruments have significant intraday ranges of price fluctuations, which implies a high probability of both profits and losses from trading transactions.

3. The Client assumes the risk of financial losses due to failures of information, communication, electrical and other systems.

4. The Client acknowledges that under market conditions other than normal, the processing time for Client instructions may increase.

5. The Client acknowledges that the only reliable source of information on the quotation flow is the main server serving real Clients. Quotation databases in the Client terminal cannot serve as a reliable source of information on the quotation flow because, in the event of an unstable connection between the Client terminal and the server, some quotations in the quotation flow may not reach the Client terminal.

6. The Client assumes the risk of financial losses caused by force majeure circumstances.

7. The Client has the right to conduct trading transactions on the Client's account using third-party trading systems or with the assistance of third parties not affiliated with the Company (hereinafter, "Third-Party Trading"). In this case, the Client confirms to the Company that the Client understands all risks associated with Third-Party Trading and hereby waives any claims against the Company in respect of any losses or damages that may be incurred by the Client as a result of Third-Party Trading.

8. The Client agrees that if the Client's trading account is managed by a third party, Company has the right to request the contact details or full identity verification of the account manager.

9. In view of the above, the Company recommends that you carefully consider whether the risks arising from conducting transactions on financial markets are acceptable to you in light of your objectives and financial capabilities.

This Notice is not intended to make you refrain from transactions on financial markets; rather, it is intended to help you assess the risks associated with transactions on financial markets and to take a responsible approach to choosing your working strategy.